CONVENING OF THE LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE.

Armed Soldiers on the Floor of the House.

They Depose an Officer and Expel Six Members.

The Conservatives Withdraw.

The Eastern Press Thundering Against the Outrage.

The Democrats Organize the Lower House.

[illegible] Jan. 4.—In the House a [illegible] was made to [illegible] permanent organization whereupon a scene of great confusion ensued in [illegible] by a motion to seat members from contested parishes. The Republicans protested against organization and denounced it as revolutionary. The sergeant at arms was called upon to seat members and restore order Finally a motion to proceed to a permanent organization was carried L. A. Wiltz and ex-Gov Hahn were put in nomination The call finished, the result was announced Wiltz 55 Hahn 2 blank 1 A quorum having voted Wiltz was declared elected and the oath of office was administered. Many Republican members had left the house. The rest started to go, when the speaker directed the sergeant at arms to allow no one to go out. A clerk was then elected and the swearing in of members began the sergeant at arms experiencing [illegible] trouble in preventing the Exodus of Republican Members.

Gen De Trobriand was sent for and at the request of the speaker he cleared the lobbies of police and [illegible] Gen de Trobriand asked that Vigors [illegible] clerk of the House should read some letters which he presented. Trezevant the newly elected clerk objected The General then asked that as he was unable to judge who was clerk of the House his Adjutant should read the letters. The Adjutant then read the letters one of which stated to the General that an illegal body was sitting as a House of Representatives, and that Mr Vigors clerk, would furnish a list of those members who had been duly elected and as such returned by the returning board. Another letter requested the General to eject those members who had not been returned as elected by the board

The chairman of the committee on elections submitted a report declaring eight members whose names were given, and who were rejected by the returning board elected. General de Trobriand experienced some difficulty in ascertaining whom of the members were rejected by the returning board Finally by the aid of Hugh Campbell Militia General Vigors clerk of the last House, succeeded in finding six who were each

Ta[illegible] out into the Lobby between two Soldiers.

As they by advice of the speaker refused to go without force being used They entered a formal protest against the act of General de Trobriand who then ordered Vigors to call the roll Speaker Wiltz refused to permit Vigors to occupy the clerk s place and [illegible] to remove him General de Trobriand declared that this was

No Organized Legislature

[illegible] Wiltz was no speaker, and ordered two soldiers to escort Vigors to the clerk s place, which was done

Speaker Wiltz then rose and briefly recounted the acts of the day He protested again the outrages committed upon [illegible] declared that Louisiana was no longer a sovereign State that she had no longer a republican form of government and concluded by calling on the representatives of the State to retire with him before this show of arms. The Democratic representatives headed by Wiltz, then [illegible] out of the hall and out of the State House to No 71 St. Louis street, followed by a large crowd who cheered heartily

Arrived at the hall Wiltz, in [illegible] to a call briefly related the circumstances of the occupation of the hall by soldiers He then called the members together and adjourned till 4 30 After the retirement of the Democratic Representatives the Republican members who had returned to the hall, organized by the election of ex Governor Hahn as speaker and adjourned till to morrow

Ind[illegible] from the New York Press

NEW YORK Jan 5.—The Tribune denounces military interference in New Orleans yesterday as the greatest outrage that has ever been practiced upon the citizens of a State The minority of a legislature, never elected by the people but seated upon them by barefaced fraud without regard to any thing but the necessity of a wicked and corrupt ring of politicians, sits in New Orleans under the protection of Federal bayonets undertakes to legislate for the State Nothing in history not even the great conspiracy by which border ruffians undertook to seize the Territory and State of Kansas can furnish any parallel to this crowning indignity of the Federal administration.

The Times avoids endorsing or approving the proceedings. It says Troops were called in to remove persons not members of the Assembly and their commander included in that number certain Democrats not named by the Returning Board but who had been admitted by the Democrats who were so named To this the Democrats who seem to have been in the minority of those present endorsed by the Returning Board protested

The Sun heads its report Yesterday s Doings 'The Crowning Outrage.'

The World has nothing but praise for the spirit in which the Representatives of Louisiana yielded to a tyranny which they could not resist There was no reason why they should not have resisted to the death except the hopelessness of [illegible] A rising would have had bad consequences pitiful and terrible even to think of The legislators of Louisiana yielded with decency when they could not resist with hope but terrible as would have been the consequences of resistance they are less terrible than will be the consequences of submission on the part of the people of the United States to an outrage which has been perpetrated upon them all, through the people of Louisiana For that submission or any tolerance of this last and worst outrage of the traitor who sits in the President s chair which [illegible] him from [illegible] and disgrace will be a confession that the American [illegible] no longer fit to [illegible] the liberty which in that [illegible] it will not take long to lose.

The Herald declares the scene a spectacle which should cause every true American to blush with shame and indignation. Forcible resistance would have been justifiable if it be ever justifiable in any case. A greater outrage on every principle of free government was never perpetrated

The New Orleans Press on the Outrage.

NEW ORLEANS Jan 5—The Times says The farce of a State government in Louisiana received another illustration yesterday Practically we have no government, legal or illegal and have not had during the past two years What is the use of this show of respect for State rights? The rule is that of the musket, the sword and a central authority and everybody knows it. Proclamations by the President and appeals for assistance by Gov Kellogg are formalities which do not cloak the real nature of the business There is no pretense in this case, of [illegible] seizure of the State house by United States troops in time of [illegible] a dissolution of the Assembly and forcible expulsion of members

The Picayune says For the first time in the history of the United States, armed soldiers have invaded a legislative hall and bayonets have been used to expel representatives of the people from their seats. No one ever dreamed that the President had the right to employ the army for the purpose of shaping the organization of a State legislature In this case there was no emergency such as the law contemplates no call was made upon him through the channel which the law points out There was no insurrection no invasion The general assembly was in session It had not asked him to interfere simply but there was an organization of the House not agreeable to Kellogg, and upon Kellogg s requisition the President sent forces to drag from their seats members whom Kellogg asserted had not been properly chosen to constitute an organization under his direction There is no escape from this statement of facts

Sheridan in Command

NEW ORLEANS, Jan 4—Lieut Gen Sheridan issued an order at 9 o clock to night announcing his assumption by order of the President of the command of the Department of the Gulf

Sheridan on the Situation

NEW ORLEANS Jan 4—The following dispatch was sent by Lieut Gen Sheridan to Secretary Belknap to night Will [illegible] regret I announce to you the existence in this State of a spirit of defiance to all lawful authority The insecurity of life can hardly be realized by the general government or the country at large The lives of citizens have become so jeopardized that unless something be done to give protection to the people all security usually afforded will be overthrown This defiance of laws and the murder of individuals seem to be looked upon by the community here from a standpoint which gives impunity to all who choose to indulge in either The civil government seems powerless to punish or even arrest I have to night assumed control over the Department of the Gulf

ALFONSO PROCLAIMED KING

PARIS Jan 1—The Spanish Minister of the Interior has sent the following dispatch to the governors of provinces Alfonso the Twelfth has been proclaimed King by the nation army and ministry A regency has been formed under the presidency of Canovas del Castillo without portfolios We hope your patriotism will induce you to firmly maintain the great interests confided to you.

The Alfonsoists consider that Carlism has received its death blow

Ex Queen Isabel [illegible] has received the following dispatches

All the towns have responded enthusiastically to the proclamation (Signed)

PRIMO DE RIVERA
Captain General of Madrid

We pray your Majesty to transmit the news to your son that we congratulate him and you on this grand triumph achieved without bloodshed This telegram is signed by Gen Primo de Rivera and Canovas del Castillo

Isabella, in response to the dispatch of Gen Primo de Rivera sent the following telegram The King proceeds to Spain at once

Alfonso has telegraphed to the Pope asking his blessing, and promising that he will like his ancestors, defend the rights of the Holy See

ENGLAND AND AMERICA

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH OF HON W [illegible] TO [illegible] AT A BANQUET TENDERED HIM BY THE UNION LEAGUE OF NEW YORK CITY

I am glad to take this opportunity of saying that from Boston to the Rocky mountains and from Niagara to New Orleans I have never heard one mention of my native country that an Englishman would not like to hear [Applause]

THE CIVIL WAR

I acknowledge that there never was any struggle in which my own country was engaged in which I felt so intense an interest as in your great war There never was a war on which depended so great a stake or of which the issue was more important. History I believe will declare that it was the war of this century of this age. What were the two great results the great stakes at issue? The preservation of this great Union the abolition of this terrible evil of slavery What would have happened if you had not succeeded? Why, your Union would have been broken up and standing armies, with alliances, combinations frontiers with constant jealousies at war with each other, would have been the ruling feature of the age, and as regards slavery, the slave power would have obtained the dominion over a large portion of your country and in fact the world would have been put back in the progress of civilization for many many years. What would then have been the result There never was a war waged for a greater stake. The results can be summed up almost in two words Slavery abolished in the United States and by the abolition and destruction of slavery your Union saved not only from that terrible evil but saved I fully believe forever [Applause] No one can travel over your country or read your history without seeing that you are united together by every tie of trade interest and blood and without seeing that such a tremendous evil as slavery could never hope to separate you

I knew what an important war it had been and how great the stake and the results but I confess that traveling in your country has made me realize it more even than I did for I was reading to-day the accounts that reached me during the struggle and it has made me realize more completely what a terrible war it was I doubt whether there ever was a civil war or any war which was waged with greater destruction of life on each side, with greater suffering and I may say, with greater courage heroism and endurance—and when I say that I do not say on one side—for your fellow-countrymen in the South showed that they are Americans showed I may say that they were of English descent [Laughter and applause] They fought indeed on what was the wrong side, the bad side, but which many of them didn't think a bad cause Circumstances appeared to so surround them such seemed to be the fate and destiny hanging over their actions, that they did not seem so much to be fighting against the nation as [illegible] fighting for their firesides, as I have been told since I was in the South Not only was the war waged one of the greatest wars in the world for the valor and heroism with which it was waged, but there was another fact which appeared to me in the short visit I made, and that is that there never was a civil war which I verily believe has left less hatred and rancor behind it (applause) less hatred between the victor and the vanquished less between the freedmen and their [illegible]ters

I consider that there is absolutely no feeling of ill will left on the part of any of the true men of the South or the North as to what has happened during this struggle for the rancor has been entirely wiped out of their memories I say this to the credit of our common race that we believe there never was in all the past not merely of its tremendous size—that we can hardly find anywhere—but any civil war for any length of time whatever that has left so little of that feeling of hatred on the part of the combatants, and made it so easy for them to unite together and be one country, as your President says [Applause] As I went through the country I heard men talk over the battles in which they had been opposed to [illegible] other, and in fact I was always told if there were any disagreement left it was not between those who had fought, but rather between those who had not fought [Laughter and applause]

POINTS OF RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND AMERICA

Well, I dare say I will be told that there is no use of talking so much about alliances between two countries because after living sometime in America Americans become very different from Englishmen, and Englishmen are changed from what they were when Americans left their country and these differences will be sufficient to keep up disagreement I believe if any one holds that opinion it is a very great mistake There are differences but it appears to me that they are differences in appearance rather than in reality Let me give my own impression on coming here I freely confess the first day or two I was struck with differences but after that the differences have seemed to disappear, and I have been able to fancy that I have been in my own country Then you may take the difference in the governments Well there is a difference in the form of government but it is curious how we get at the same end, have the same objects, and how there is the same principle in our government I have been spending a week in Washington, and was most kindly allowed [illegible] as much as possibly could be seen of the machinery of your parliamentary body but I confess at first sight there seemed a very great difference I was aware of one more remarkable difference in finding that while with us a ministry ceases to be a ministry as soon as the majority of the country have declared against the party to which they have belonged with your institution it would be difficult I do not know whether it would be possible to make a change in this respect but I was not prepared to find out this fact—that members of your House of Commons, if I may be allowed to so designate your House of Representatives remained in power and remained members long after they had been turned out [Laughter] [illegible] bates in your House but I find out that two thirds—I was told probably it would be one-half—of the gentlemen I had the pleasure of seeing and waiting for them those who were ready to take their places and who like the Peris in the poem were looking in at Elysium and still kept out [Laughter] If I come across my own colleagues when I go home I shall certainly tell them how different would have been their position here and how exceedingly premature in an American point of view would have been our precipitate action of last year [Laughter]

But I believe you have a very good reason for this difference It seems to me that it is your way of bringing in the conservative elements in affairs, which I suppose would be necessary in any popular government The principle of both countries is that the will of the people shall be obeyed That is the principle upon which your government is formed and your Parliament is constituted and upon which our government and Parliament are constructed Though both of us think we should be perfectly sure we know what that will is yet you take time to find it out [Laughter] We have our House of Lords, and it appears to me that these delays and checks of a year or so do with you what our House of Lords do with us and I am not at all sure that your plan is not rather more conservative of the two I only say this is illustrative of the similarity between us and you in principle and reality though there may be a difference in appearance and form

Well, there is talk about the difference in the form of government You have a Republic and a central government over your federation of States and we have our islands with their sovereign and our colonies growing up to be our equals And yet our fellow subjects rejoice in a common allegiance to the constitutional monarchy because the fact is that we have not been altogether stupid, that is to say the lesson you taught us about colonies one hundred years ago we have to some extent learned and I imagine that we have learned it so far that we have made it very hard for our colonies and shall continue to make it very hard for them, to wish to leave us. Whether under President or sovereign whether you choosing as you do your first magistrate from time to time or proud as we are of our loyalty to our beloved and honored Queen we are substantially alike

You and we together whether American citizens or British subjects are the citizens of commonwealths The practice of our governments is in a large measure the same—a government of the people for the people by the people [Applause]

THE TIES OF BLOOD

There are thousands upon thousands of men in almost every one of your cities that have their relations in our country, and there is scarcely any man of our towns and villages that has not got his kinsmen here And I can recollect when I was addressing my constituents at the time of that civil war of catching this up and saying This is not a foreign country for who of you present has not got his relations in America?" and almost half of the audience jumped up

A REAL WANT

The only thing you want, if I may be excused for reminding you of a want, or rather that which you want most and which if you supply will make everything else comparatively easy is this That men of station and position of intellect and culture could not be content with criticising but should take part in the government of their country You have been having your election I hear from day to day of cases in which men are coming forward who felt that they had not done enough up to this time and that patriotism called upon them to take a part in the government of their country in the same manner as it called upon them to take part in the war—a call to which they so generally and nobly responded

Well if we have the like faculties and temptations we have the like objects and aims They are aims which we do in a measure fulfill, and aspirations which we do in a measure attain to We are alike determined to protect the individual liberties. We and you revere the law and are determined to preserve order and we and you so determine to protect the rights of property We are for education for all and for freedom for all, and we alike are determined that no priest or potentate shall stand between our Creator and ourselves [Applause] We are both of us anxious to replace war by arbitration and defense not defiance, is our motto I could add that we are determined to have free trade and untrammeled commercial intercourse [Applause] I alluded a day or two ago to the speech of Mr Hewitt (who was present in the audience), who spoke far too kindly about myself I don t know whether he is a Free Trader or not but he said he looked forward to the time when he would be a Free-Trader, because the difficulty of having free trade was that labor was cheaper with us, and soon we should be having the English laborer so well off that labor would be as dear We have made him far better off than he was, we shall [illegible] Mr Hewitt will find out that the best way to make laborers in both countries best off is to have the greatest freedom of commercial intercourse Which is best may be left to speedy history to decide. If there is any one thing we want it is justice to the weaker races we to India and Africa you to your negroes and Indians, and both of us to China and Japan, and the islands of the Pacific and I mention this because it is an illustration of how much easier it is for us now to work together—the two Governments—than it was. There is [illegible] than this—that we should set our faces against that terrible trade of Coolies in China and against that revival of the slave trade in the islands of the Pacific

A few years ago we could hardly have counted upon you for assistance. Now we can count upon you for the fullest assistance and we know both Governments will be spurring each other up to do their duty in the matter

MR FORSTER S CLOSING REMARKS.

Now, gentlemen I have already detained you longer than I expected, and I must now conclude I must beg you to let me thank you, to wish through you prosperity to your great country, and peace between your States, and wisdom and virtue to your statesmen so that by just and equal rule over every class contentment may prevail throughout your wide border, north and south and west and I can hardly sit down without giving especial thanks to the Club, sir, [turning to the President] of which you are President for its overpowering kindness to me enabling me to meet not only its own members but so many of your distinguished citizens and in doing so perhaps I may take the name of your Club as an omen for the future

This Union League Club I am told was formed in dark hours of danger to bind together loyal Americans in support of your glorious Union against the slave power May it be the type and forerunner of another union league of a close alliance between the United States and England, and all English speaking communities of a friendship between our Governments so that we together may influence the world by proving how great are the blessings of popular government, when individual self control prevails among the people, for depend upon it neither you nor we will be able to promote the liberties abroad or protect the liberties of others or even preserve our own liberties if either of us allow this individual self control to fade from among us [Great applause]

INFLEXIBLE JUSTICE IN DETROIT

AN EXTRA OCCASION

When the corridor door opened nine men aged from eighteen to fifty five, walked out, and Bijah arranged them in a half circle around the desk His honor lifted his voice nine times to ask if they were guilty or not guilty of the charge of vagrancy, and nine voices squeaked out in answer Guilty!

Sergeant Burger had made a day of it and gathered them in from the shores of the gurgling river and from the bleak alleys, and there they stood Some were tall and commanding, and some were short and retiring in demeanor There wasn t a whole coat on any man s back, and some of the nine hadn t passed a comb through their hair since the day of the last Chicago fire Some assumed graceful positions and others didn t care a plum for grace, but hung to the railing and waited for the performance to begin It soon began It began with a speech his honor remarking

FELLOW CITIZENS OF AMERICA —Never before during my career as judge of this court have I ever seen so many vagrants before me at one time and it may be years before I see another such lot If I should speak to you separately it would take half a day for me to express my feelings and so I shall speak to you collectively I presume you all know the object of this meeting and I presume you are ready for business Have any of you anything to say?

There was a pause Some of the nine looked at Bijah and wondered why no capillary substance vegetated on top of his cranium and others gazed at the clerk and wondered how many election bets he lost

If none of you have anything to say I will go on with my speech continued his honor It shall be brief and to the point I shall make no mention of the Pilgrim Fathers, nor refer to the glorious Fourth of July nor yet advert to the present stringency of the money market. What I desire to impress upon your mind is the fact that each of you is chalked for a stay of four months at the work house The convention stands adjourned —Detroit Free Press

CAPTURE OF THE BROWN BOYS

Readers will remember the homicides occurring in the Klamath country last summer, in which Geo Brown was killed by a man named Hurt who was brought into Jacksonville given a preliminary trial and released on bail and on his return was slain by William and Walter Brown two brothers of the man killed by Hurt while he was riding along the highway in company with a man named Prine and who is said to be the only witness to the tragedy Since that time, until a few days ago the Brown brothers have eluded arrest although every effort has been made to capture them, a reward of $500 being set upon their heads About three weeks ago certain suspicious circumstances induced the officers to believe that they had returned and were lurking in the vicinity of their old home on Sprague river in Lake county Sheriff Manning, of Jackson county detailed Deputy Sheriff Thomas B Kent and H L (Curly) Webb to seek for and capture them if possible The officers repaired secretly to the locality mentioned but could find no trace of their men They however became satisfied that the Brown boys were in that part of the country The better to throw watches off their guard they went to Yainax reservation and employed three noted Indian scouts to haunt the particular locality supposed to contain the refugees These scouts shadowed the spot for two days and nights At some distance from a house was a stack yard containing ricks of hay One of these was watched by an Indian, who on the second morning just at day break saw one of the supposed men emerge from the stacks, and with a gun in hand, go to the house. Soon another did the same, and then the Indians returned to the officers and related what they had discovered The weather was very cold and clear with about a foot of snow on the ground, but the officers determined to capture them as soon as possible at any rate to know who lived in those haystacks On the following morning they in company with another white man and the three Indians, repaired to the spot, reaching it about 3 o'clock The moon shone brightly the snow was soft and light and everything was propitious Cautiously approaching the fence surrounding the stacks they reconnoitered the ground and found the men asleep in a little shed between a stack and the fence Leaving the Indians on the outside the men sprang over the fence and surrounded their sleeping victims unobserved At a given sign they were called upon to sit up and throw up their hands, which they very readily did, when their astonished gaze revealed the close proximity to their noses of three double [illegible] at full cock They were handcuffed and taken to the house, where after taking leave of their friends, they were brought to Jacksonville by [illegible] afoot, [illegible] They reached here on Christmas morning, and the Browns were [illegible] in jail where they will [illegible]

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 6, 1875.

THE SITUATION IN NEW ORLEANS.

The news from Louisiana this morning is most discouraging. Again the authority of the Federal Executive is used to support the waning power of a minority Governor, for the second time the State Legislature is dispersed by the bayonets of United States troops, and two bodies, each claiming to be the legal Assembly, are sitting in different halls. If the spectacle of Sunday was humiliating and disgraceful, this last outrage may well call forth the angry protest of the whole people.

When the Louisiana Legislature met, last Monday morning, there were no indications of trouble. Notwithstanding the scandalous conduct of the Returning Board in reversing by canvass the verdict of the people at the polls, there was a manifest disposition on the part of the aggrieved people to submit quietly until relief could be had through the legislative branch of the government. Kellogg had telegraphed to the President for more troops, and the President had honored his requisition. So on Monday morning the State-House was guarded by squads of United States soldiers and Metropolitan police. The Legislature assembled and the lower house was duly organized. The usual formalities seem to have been complied with—such formalities as the appointment of a committee on credentials, the election of Speaker, Sergeant-at-Arms, Clerk, etc.

An officer wearing the uniform of the United States army appears on the floor of the House and asks that certain letters be read by the Clerk of the last House. Objection being made, he orders a file of soldiers to remove the officer elect of the House and install Vigors, the former Clerk. This is done at the point of United States bayonets. The committee on credentials presents its report declaring certain persons duly elected and entitled to seats. Vigors, the [illegible] Clerk, presents a pretended list of members. The Federal officer, General de Trobriand, announces that these constitute the House of Representatives of Louisiana, and commands all whose names do not appear on Vigors' list to leave the floor. They decline, and are forcibly expelled by the troops. This is done at the point of United States bayonets. The Federal officer next orders Vigors to call the roll, and Speaker Wiltz directs the Sergeant-at-Arms to remove Vigors. Again the Federal authority intervenes. With a wave of his sword, the soldier-Speaker declares "this no Legislature and Wiltz no Speaker." Thereupon the Conservative members withdraw.

Thus far in this narrative we have assumed that the troops which accomplished this outrage (it is nothing less than an outrage of most atrocious and dangerous character) were United States soldiers. The columns of the New Orleans press clearly indicate this to be true.

Every thinking man will at once recognize these proceedings as extraordinary and without precedent in law. The Constitution of Louisiana makes each house of the Legislature judge of the election and qualifications of its members. It does not confer upon any Returning Board, much less on a United States army officer, any power to decide who shall and who shall not be admitted to seats in the Legislature. The sole function of the Returning Board is to canvass the vote, detect irregularities and submit their findings to the legislative branch of the State government. Each house can, under the Constitution, admit contestants [illegible] by the Board. The lower House had exercised this constitutional prerogative, it seems, and certain persons who had been declared not elected by the Returning Board, had been declared elected by the committee on credentials. Just here the Federal authority intervenes, pronounces upon the law and the facts, drives Representatives from their seats and installs in their places the willing tools of a corrupt and vicious Executive. General de Trobriand was obeying the orders of a superior officer—the General commanding the Department of the Gulf. That commanding General is subject to the orders of the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of War receives his instructions from the President. It is thus made possible for a President at Washington to make and unmake Legislatures in distant States; to tear down and build up State governments, and shape the [illegible] policy and [illegible] of communities to his own pleasure. If our statement of the facts be correct, then in the scenes of Monday President Grant, be it wittingly or unwittingly, appeared in the character of another Cromwell, dispersing the parliament of a sovereign State by no right save the right of the strongest. In all candor, being deeply impressed with the national significance of the events now transpiring in the South, we ask: if such things are possible in Louisiana, are they not also possible in Oregon?

A GENUINE BOURBON.

From the tone of his paper we judge that the editor of the Eugene Guard belongs to that cowardly wing of the Northern Democracy which, lacking the manhood and physical courage to aid the Southern Confederacy in the field, sought to destroy the Union and maintain the slave power by passing resolutions denouncing the war as "a miserable failure." The following paragraph, taken from the Guard of Jan. 2d, tends to confirm our opinion:

> DEAD.—Gerrit Smith, the notorious abolitionist and so-called philanthropist, died a few days since. We can only hope that he has not gone to meet his "just reward."

There is not an honest son of New York, whatever his political creed, who will not resent this covert, slanderous attack on the dead. Howsoever radical and extreme Gerrit Smith may have been in his sympathy for the slave, his honesty and integrity was never questioned in his life-time. He was a genuine philanthropist; not only a friend of the oppressed negro but a benevolent friend of the poor white man. He gave of his abundance to every worthy cause. One of his last and noblest benefactions was the gift of his immense estate—200,000 acres of land—among the poor whites of his neighborhood, in parcels of 40 and 50 acres. His whole life was lustrous with deeds of love and charity. We opine that the man who thus reviles the coffined dead, never owned a slave nor saw a plantation. In the old days of slavery the cruellest overseer was the renegade Yankee. The genuine Southerner, impulsive but brave and generous, was never heard to utter a sentiment so mean and vicious as that quoted from the Guard. May the good God deliver the republic from the clutches of the Northern Bourbon, who neither learns anything nor remembers anything save his hate of the "nigger" and the power that emancipated him.

THE DOLE OF AN ORGAN.

That address to friends and patrons of the OREGONIAN, published in this paper last Friday, worries a morning cotemporary into all manner of intemperate language. When the article was written we could see in it nothing calculated to produce a sensation. It was intended for a dispassionate, truthful statement of the work done by the OREGONIAN in 1874 and its intentions for the new year. We had not the remotest idea that it would occasion such distress as the Bulletin complains of. But by some process of chemical affinity that paper takes to the words "corruption" and "bribery," and straightway there is such an effervescence and angry bubbling as can only ensue when two villainous elements come together. The public is treated to such elegant epithets as "lying prospectus," and such forcible figures of speech as that in which the Bulletin pronounces the patrons of the OREGONIAN characters who are "a shame to His Satanic Majesty." (The Bulletin always has a way of emphasizing its ideas with capital letters that is perfectly irresistible).

Now we must beg our irritable neighbor to keep more quiet. In its present feeble condition, the least excitement is liable to prove fatal. We don't want to see it go into the purgatory which awaits all organs, with all its sins on its empty head. As for us, out of our abounding charity we vow never again to flaunt the red flag of a prospectus before the enraged Bull-etin,—until 1875 at least. At the same time, neighbor, if you derive any pleasure from gnashing your teeth at honest folk, why, gnash away! We are much obliged to the Bulletin for advertising our prospectus.

The Detroit Tribune furnishes some interesting figures bearing on Senator Chandler's chances for re-election. It says: "There are published in this State at this time 106 newspapers which are pronouncedly Republican, and about twenty others 'devoted to local interests,' but have Republican leanings; up to date but thirty-six of the whole number have pronounced in favor of Mr. Chandler's re-election."

THE INDEPENDENTS.

[From the Chicago Times, Dec. 22.]

That the so-called Independent party, which has made considerable stir in the political world since the "Hard Times" and "prairie fire" campaign of 1873, is going to be incontinently [illegible], swallowed, absorbed, and "gobbled up," by the professional politicians of either the Bourbon or the Republican label, is very far from being one of the settled questions in American politics. Throughout the northwest, the Independents are a positive political power. They have an organization in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and three or four other States, that has made its power felt at the ballot-box; that has gained in a great many places, and in some of state magnitude, the prestige of victory. The "free-soil" or Fremont political party which contested the presidential election in 1856, and out of which there sprang the great all-conquering party that elected Mr. Lincoln and politically revolutionized the nation, set up in business upon far less capital than the Independents can boast of to-day. In not a single State had it gained a single victory when, amidst the scornful jibes of the old party professionals, it went into the Fremont campaign, to be overwhelmingly defeated, but out of the ashes of which defeat it suddenly sprang, Phœnix-like, into a new and conquering existence. Of course the political conditions now are different from the conditions then; but the history of that day is, nevertheless, not of a kind that tends to discourage the ambitious hopes of the Independents of to-day.

The significant letter of Congressman Kelley to the recent assembly of Independents at Indianapolis is a straw on the political current of the time that it would be unwise not to observe. Since the publication of Mr. Kelley's letter, Mr. Buchanan (to whom it was addressed) has written to a conspicuous Independent in St. Louis a letter in which he states, upon [illegible] knowledge of the fact, that Congressman Kelley "will come out flatly for the Independent party before the winter is over, and in time to take a prominent part in the national Independent convention at Cleveland on the 14th of March."

In Illinois, there have appeared no signs of an indication on the part of the Independents to abandon their organization. In the Legislature, which will convene next month, they will compose a strong minority; not much, if any less than the old Bourbon minority. The Bourbon managers have been laying a great deal of pipe to catch their votes for a Bourbon speaker of the house; even the disreputable Boss Hesing has been engaged to apply his apparatus for delivering other folks' votes out of his pocket. But, as yet, this characteristic Bourbon programme has not given great promise of fruition. There is, among the leading Independents, a manifest disposition to maintain their own organization, leaving the gates ajar for repentant sinners to come in, but declining any and all invitations from old party spiders to walk into their parlors. Should the Independents persist in fighting it out on this line, meantime bringing to the front some abler leaders with better brains in their heads, it would be the height of presumption to say that their political race is run. There is no predicting what the political events of the present winter and the succeeding summer may bring forth. Even the longest-headed old party fugleman never, in the whole course of his existence, found himself so completely as now in the situation of one who realizes the fact that he isn't either a prophet or the son of one.

CATCHING A LUNATIC.

[Washington Corr. of the Boston Journal.]

A fine elm tree, which stood near the goldfish pond directly before the Capitol, has been cut down, unavoidably, as it with others obstructed the view of the building. At one of the inaugurations of Mr. Lincoln—the first one, I believe—a crazy man clambered up into this tree, and, going out on one of the branches until it swayed with his weight, he began to address the assembled multitude at the top of his voice on slavery. The officials entreated him to come down, but he refused, and declared that if any one attempted to climb up after him he would jump to the ground, which would have killed or maimed him. And so he kept shouting away, although it was almost time for the President-elect to appear on the platform in front of the Capitol, and there deliver his inaugural. No one could have heard this had the lunatic continued to yell out his incoherent and blasphemous sentences so near him. What was to be done? Some shouted, "Shoot him!" but there was a general cry of disapprobation. A mounted army officer conceived a plan for quieting the noisy fellow. Riding up to the tree in which he was perched, he said in a commanding tone: "You, sir, up there! Mr. Lincoln desires to see you a few moments, to consult you about his inaugural!" "Does Lincoln really want my sublime ideas?" said the interested lunatic. "He is waiting in the Senate Chamber," replied the officer. "I'll come right down," answered the crazy man, and he descended with great rapidity, but no sooner had he touched the ground than half a dozen detectives grabbed him. He struggled lustily, declaring that the President had sent for him, but he was carried bodily to the guard-house, and just as his ravings grew faint in the distance, Mr. Lincoln came to the front of the platform and delivered his inaugural without interruption. I have never since seen the tree without thinking of this incident.

AN IMPULSIVE STATESMAN.—Jim McCue is a member of the California Assembly, and one of the most impulsive of San Francisco's statesmen. If he should rise high enough in politics to step into Congress—and the fact that he is one of the richest saloon keepers on the Pacific coast, with an extensive drinking acquaintance, gives reasonableness to such a surmise—he will be a good member not to have a misunderstanding with. The other day Mr. McCue rode out with Colonel C. A. Spear, another San Francisco politician. They stopped at a wayside groggery to drink, and in getting into the carriage again they jostled each other. The Colonel unwittingly put his hand toward his pistol pocket, and the Assemblyman, putting the ordinary Western construction on the movement, quickly drew his own revolver and fired. The ball went half way around the Colonel's head between the skull and the scalp; but court-plaster and an apology are likely to heal the wounds of cranium and friendship, and thus no break will be made in the ranks of the Assemblyman's supporters.

AN OREGON SUBSIDY SCHEME.—One more railroad subsidy scheme was added to-day to the long list before the House. This is the bill offered by Mr. Nesmith, of Oregon, to guarantee 4 per cent. interest on the bonds of the Oregon Central Pacific railroad and telegraph line, to the amount of $20,000 a mile. The inhabitants of Oregon seem to have given up the hope of ever seeing the Northern Pacific railroad built, and are now looking for connections with the present transcontinental line, which shall also open the fertile eastern portion of their State.—Washington Corr. Chicago Times.

The Washington Chronicle of Dec. 22d, announces a new departure, as follows: Commencing with the year 1875, one number of each week of the Washington Chronicle will be handsomely illustrated, by a corps of artists now employed by the company, and will produce a pictorial paper second to none in the United States. Of the first number, fifty thousand copies will be issued.

SUICIDE AT SEA.

AN INDIAN CHIEF CUTS HIS THROAT WHILE ON BOARD THE GUSSIE TELFAIR, AND DIES BY HIS OWN HANDS—ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE STEAMER.

Among the passengers brought down on the steamer Gussie Telfair from Sitka, was a sub-chief of the Stikine tribe, whose name was Fernandeste. This sachem was the principal witness against one of the several prisoners brought down on that steamer to this city. Fernandeste seemed rather loth to leave his native heath and acted at times a little singular while on his way down to this port. Nothing, however was seriously thought of the chief's actions and no one harbored the most remote idea that he meditated self destruction. While off the coast last Sunday evening about 8 o clock, Fernandeste retired to his state room. He shut the door, tied his handkerchief to the knob on the inside and to some object in the room. It seems that another Indian—one of the same tribe—suspected the object of Fernandeste's retiring to the room. About 15 or 20 minutes after the chief entered the state room the Indian went to the door, which he succeeded in opening by pulling violently at it. A moment later he came running up to the first mate of the vessel, and by violent excited gesticulations and broken English signified that the chief had cut his throat. The mate ran to the room and to his surprise and horror found the lifeless form of the Indian Fernandeste lying on the floor. Life had just left the body as it was limp and still warm. The alarm was given, and officers drew and passengers came rushing to the scene of the tragedy. Examination disclosed the fact that Fernandeste had cut his throat literally from ear to ear. The fatal deed was committed with a small penknife the blade of which was not to exceed two inches in length. He had evidently set about the bloody task with spirit and resolution and had accomplished the deed by sawing away at his throat with a degree of perseverance worthy of a better cause. A ghastly and sickening spectacle was presented by the dead chief as he lay on the cabin floor weltering in his life's blood. No reason can be assigned for this deliberate self murder except on the generally attributed and universally accepted theory of insanity. Indeed, there seems to be no other cause to which the rash deed can be assigned under the circumstances. Deceased was aged about 40 years. He was a chief of considerable authority among the Stikines, by which tribe he was held in high esteem. After his death the body was carefully laid out and preserved until Astoria was reached. At that place the remains were taken ashore and buried in a decent manner.

Immediately following the tragic event on Sunday evening a remarkable and very exciting incident transpired on board the steamer. The Indian who had been the first to discover and announce the suicide made an unsuccessful attempt to blow up the steamer. Most fortunately for the vessel and for those on board the diabolical attempt was timely discovered and frustrated. While the excitement over the finding of the lifeless remains of Fernandeste was at its hight this Indian deeming that a favorable opportunity had arrived, seized a large can of powder and started below with the intention of throwing it in the furnace. He had almost succeeded in reaching the furnace and an instant later would have cast the explosive material into the burning coals when he was caught and the can wrested from his hands. Perhaps the quantity of powder was insufficient to have blown the steamer up, but the explosion would doubtless have done much damage to the boiler and fatally injured or killed outright a number of persons. As might reasonably be expected, the affair created the most intense excitement on board to which that produced by the suicide was but secondary. After this attempt the Indian was placed in confinement and kept under strict surveillance until the steamer reached this port. He confessed, after being placed in confinement, that it was Fernandeste's intention to blow up the steamer while on the way down. For want of a favorable opportunity the chief failed to carry into execution his diabolical scheme, and it would seem that the Indian finding his chief was dead, became seized with a sudden determination to carry into effect the orginal plan. The unfortunate death of Fernandeste is much regretted by all on board the steamer but the officers of the vessel are in no manner responsible for the tragical affair.

A DOUBLY ... NEBRASKA DUEL.

A Lincoln, Nebraska dispatch says: Last Sunday evening Hon. D S Parmelee, a well-known citizen of Omaha and Elkhorn and a member of the Legislature of 1869–70 was going from the warehouse at Elkhorn station to his farm about three miles distant when he encountered a neighbor, Tom Keeler who was also returning from the station. Between Keeler, a desperate, quarrelsome man and Parmelee there had been a feud of several years standing, and both men were armed on this occasion —Parmelee with a repeating rifle and Keeler with a double barreled shot gun. Keeler when the wagons of the two neighbors were from eight to ten rods apart stopped and declared that they must fight it out then. Both men seized their guns and sprung from their wagons. Parmelee's first fire missed. Keeler fired both barrels of his gun wounding Parmelee slightly and his horses severely. Parmelee fired three times after being hit, each shot taking effect in Keeler's neck and lungs, killing him instantly. The shooting occurred about half a mile from town and Parmelee returned immediately and gave himself up. The preliminary examination was set for yesterday morning at Omaha.

Public opinion seems strongly in favor of Parmelee who is a valued citizen and peaceable law abiding man, and it is believed he acted strictly in self defense and that the community is well rid of the man whose murderous disposition has at last brought upon him its reward. He always went it is said with one or two revolvers strapped to his hips boasting that no man could get the drop on him and he has died a fitting death. Parmelee was arraigned last evening and gave bail in $8 000

PARTICULARS OF THE MISSISSIPPI DUEL.—Mobile Dec 24.—The duel between Tardy and Lay was fought at Grand Bay Station in Mississippi. Dueling pistols were used, not double barreled guns, as reported. They fought at fifteen paces and Tardy was shot through the right side on a line with the heart, and died almost instantly. His body was brought to this city last night. All the parties engaged in the affair including Drs Scales and Reese, were arrested this morning. Lay is somewhat noted for his duelling propensities, and is an excellent shot. Mr Tardy was quite near-sighted, and he did not fire. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that deceased came to his death from a pistol shot fired by Benjamin Lay, and recommended that Lay and the two seconds be held for examination. They have given bail to appear before the city court

AN AGED MEXICAN.—Pope Pius IX. has lately received from Santa Cruz, Cal through Cardinal Franchi, Prefect of the Propaganda, the photograph of a Mexican, still living who has attained the age of 122 years. Beneath the picture are these words, written in Spanish, by the old man himself "I, Justiniano Roxas, am 122 years old, wish the most holy Pope long years of life." The parish register of Santa Cruz, shows that Roxas was baptized March 4, 1792, being at that time about 40 years of age. He has always led an exemplary life and still walks to mass on Sundays with no help but that of his staff and asks the blessing of the Pope, whom he calls the Capitan de los Apostoles."

PAUSE WHILE YOU READ THIS! The season for parties and balls has arrived and the cold dreary days and nights of winter will soon visit us. Every young man old man and boy, for that matter likes to present a neat appearance when attending parties, the theater or walking about the streets. They likewise desire to be well provided against the cold blasts of snow and rain. What contributes more to the personal appearance and comfort of a gentleman or boy than a nice closely fitting suit of clothes set off with a heavy warm overcoat? Why will any one be so foolish as to go without either when BECK & WALDMAN have everything in that line. Beck & Waldman in laying in their immense fall and winter stock of Clothing, have exercised great care and selected with reference to the demands of trade. They have purchased their goods low and are determined not to be undersold. Let the public note this fact.

CHEMICAL DIFFICULTY.—A lively exchange tells the following story: One of our merchants recently sold a gross of matches to a woman who on reaching her house, could not make them burn. In a towering passion which increased all the way back, she returned and demanded "Why did you cheat me with those worthless matches?" "Matches," returned the grocer pleasantly—he always wears a smile for his customers—"what is the matter with the matches?" "They won't burn, not one of them," was the quick and angry response. "Let me see," said the gentleman, applying the charged end to his pantaloons and causing it to blaze instanter, "that burns well enough." "But the rest won't," replied the woman who begun to fear that she had walked seven miles and was to return seven more on foot and had got angry for nothing. The grocer opened three packs and proved them all the same. "I don't want to burn up all your matches," he said, "but there is not one that will not burn the same way." Chagrined she stared at him with tiger eyes and not to be beaten burst out: "If they will you don't suppose every time I want a fire I'm coming all this way to rub them on the seat of your trousers, do you?"

WHEREFORE ART THOU, RO[illegible]?

A GREAT SOCIETY SENSATION—DIVORCE SUIT IN ENGLAND—EXTRAORDINARY REVELATIONS—THE PEERLESS JULIET IN A [illegible] PREDICAMENT

Recent Eastern exchanges have promulgated the fact of Miss Neilson's partial failure in her professional career during the present season. A Brooklyn paper tells how thereby hangs a tail.

The matter which is just now creating the most excitement in dramatic circles on this side of the ocean is the revelation which has recently taken place in England regarding the private life of Mrs Adelaide Neilson Lee, and which has shown that charming lady to the world in anything but a pleasant light to herself though no doubt it has been highly pleasant to the world. Miss Neilson's, or more properly speaking Mrs Philip Lee's success in this country was as much a social as a dramatic one. The lady aspired to and succeeded in, being introduced into some of the best families here. She came over with several good letters of introduction and a husband who had every appearance of a gentleman at first sight. The letters are from

on the other side, and described Mrs Neilson Lee as a remarkably virtuous and even austere woman, while her husband was stated to be the son of a clergyman in the best repute in the Church of England. All this, of course, helped Miss Neilson in her monetary success. People who don't often go to the theaters went to see her because she was such an excellent young woman. She had plenty of money, spent it freely, dressed her husband well, and let him have all the money he wanted. Everybody voted Miss Neilson a pretty woman and a good actress while her husband was set down to be an inoffensive kind-hearted sort of an ass. Subsequent [illegible] more knave than fool. After the season was over in the spring of 1873, Miss Neilson went to England, [illegible] months there and came back in the fall and played a second engagement over [illegible] to even still better business. She was, indeed, acquitted

THE BEST PAYING FEMALE "STAR"

[illegible] try. She returned to England once more in the spring of the present year, and there [illegible], no doubt very unwillingly, the most central, because the best known figure in one of the most celebrated divorce suits which have interested a country [illegible] productive of the article. For if anything more than another could tend to destroy the generally accepted delusion of

in England it would be the records of the Divorce Court first brought into being by that wonderful cynic but great lawyer, Sir Cresswell Cresswell, who was its presiding judge for so many years. This particular divorce case of which we speak was one which would have delighted that gentleman to try. It became known as the case of Birch vs Birch, in which Mrs Eleanor Birch, of Manchester in the county of Lancashire, sued her lawful husband, Thomas Birch, a wealthy cotton spinner, on the ground of adultery, for divorce and alimony. What gave the case its most peculiar interest was the fact that Miss Neilson, alias Mrs Philip Lee, was the co-respondent in the case. Such a legal existence as a co-respondent is not known on this side of the Atlantic, but it may be described as the third party to the suit, and the one upon whom indeed the case mainly rests. The accusation made by Mrs Birch was that in the summer of [illegible] her husband, Thomas Birch, had committed adultery with the before-named co-respondent Mrs Adelaide Neilson Lee. The case was taken before a jury and the [illegible] in England tried it on the Northern Circuit at Leeds during the past summer. Upon the trial, which occupied several days, the facts developed were of the most interesting character, and were, of course, sworn to by the [illegible]. It appears that Mr Birch became acquainted with Miss Neilson at one of the theaters of London and that the acquaintance ripened into a friendship which Mr Birch did not conceal from his wife, who, [illegible], never doubted its entire innocence. Some time after, Miss Neilson was engaged to play in Manchester, the city where Mr and Mrs Birch resided. The husband proposed to his wife to invite Mr and Mrs Lee to their house during the time they should remain in Manchester, to which the wife freely consented. The invitation was given and accepted and upon the arrival of Mr and Mrs Lee in Manchester they immediately repaired to the residence of Mr. Birch, which was a little way out of the city, and one of the most magnificent country houses in England. Miss Neilson performed [illegible] at the theater, and Mr and Mrs. Birch, accompanied by Mr. Lee, attended nightly [illegible] charming company, and all went on well for a week. At this [illegible] Mrs Birch's near relations fell seriously ill, in a distant part of the country, and it became necessary for her to leave her home and pay a visit to her sick relative. Mr Birch entirely approved of the resolve, and it was arranged between them that her absence should make no difference in the continuation of the stay of Mr and Mrs Lee at their house. The wife departed and left Mr Birch and Mr and Mrs Lee at her home behind her, and they all manifested so much interest as to accompany her a portion of the way on her journey. They returned to the home of Mr Birch, and then came the act of which Mrs Birch complained. It appears that which were testified to, Mrs Neilson Lee left her husband to sleep alone on a sofa in a lower room while she repaired up stairs to the bed of Mr. Birch, and there remained. In the [illegible] evidence adduced this fact was clearly proven, though the motive which induced the alleged complaisance on the part of Mr. Lee was not shown. It appeared, however, that Mr Birch awarded Mrs Lee by several handsome and costly presents.

A ROUND OF HER CHARACTERS

Soon after the expiration of the engagement of Miss Neilson, at Manchester, Mr. and Mrs Lee left the house of Mrs Birch, and before the return of the wife.

The latter learned the facts of the case some time after through the servants in the house and she immediately left her husband and entered the suit for divorce. Upon this showing the jury granted Mrs Birch the divorce and alimony for which she prayed. The case was reported at great length in the English papers and caused no small sensation. Miss Neilson was, of course, in consequence and the case was cause in fact of a separation between Mr and Mrs Lee. Who was the one that insisted on this is not known, but it is probable that while Mr Philip Lee could possibly stand his wife's infidelity, and even consent to it he could not stand its eclat and the anything but enviable position in which his own wretched conduct placed him. In any case he no doubt thought it unhealthy for him to visit America this season.

It was almost immediately after the trial of the case, and still smarting from its disgrace, that Miss Neilson came back here. While, singular to say, few people seemed to have heard of it here so interesting a piece of information soon got noised abroad and known, spite of the extraordinary efforts put forth to

KEEP IT OUT OF THE PAPERS

The whispered knowledge of the affair has had a damning effect upon Miss Neilson's future career here. The society which received her before with open arms refused to have anything further to do with her and to that extent that her business at the Lyceum Theater in New York was a losing one from beginning to end. While we lament and deplore this uncharitableness on the part of the public which after all has nothing to do with an artist's private life, we're afraid the knowledge of the affair may have the same effect upon Miss Neilson's business during her coming engagement in Brooklyn that it had in New York. We speak therefore, of the whole affair more in sorrow than in anger for no doubt the career of a

but rather pretty young woman is quite blasted by the expose. It's a great pity but then no woman ever had less excuse to go astray and the public will probably look at it in this way. Much as we may condemn the woman however, what can be said of the man who consented to her dishonor and probably found no small profit in it? In all matters of this kind Brooklyn is and the knowledge of this story will probably injure the lady very bad houses if she cares to come here. Several stories of the kind had been whispered about Miss Neilson before her marriage, in one of which she is said to have eloped with Prince Teck, husband of Princess Mary of Cambridge, and that the Queen found it necessary to follow them both to Prussia and make the princely scion return, Miss Neilson letting him go for a consideration from the Queen. But of course,

MARRIAGE COVERED ALL THIS

It was not thought then she would do any more of this sort of thing, but the force of habit is strong you see. The question is would not this expose resulting in such damage to her that she is no more attractive to the public justify her manager in breaking his contract with her.

The appearance of matters in local monetary circles is not changed since yesterday, and no extra demand seems yet to have set in since the first of the month. Yesterday and to-day have been quiet in money matters except in local collections which are reported ready in most instances, indicative of a very fair degree of ease and a free supply of coin in general circulation. Remittances from the interior are coming forward in very much reduced volume, as is the rule at this date in the year. The people at large in our State are about as nearly clear of debt as ever before and with a revival of business activity there is no reason why the year upon which we have just entered should not be a fairly prosperous one.

A late Chicago paper, speaking of the new financial bill in the Senate says: "After January 1879, the bill requires that the Secretary shall redeem in coin the treasury notes then outstanding on presentation, &c. This plan of redemption is easily understood. But the bill is a little opaque as to the mode by which the secretary is to get the funds for this redemption and for the preliminary or preparatory redemption of the eighty millions. For both these redemptions he is authorized to use any surplus revenues in the treasury, and to issue sell and dispose of at not less than par in coin any of the 5, 4½ and 4 per cent. bonds heretofore authorized to be issued. The acts of 1870–'71 authorized the issue of $1,500,000,000 of 5 per cents all of which have been negotiated except $120,000,000, for which certain persons have an agreement securing to them an option until January 31 1875. This will dispose of all the 5 per cents authorized to be issued, leaving the secretary with authority only to issue bonds at 4½ and and at 4 per cent. As the 5 per cents are just struggling to keep at par it is not likely that the secretary will be able to sell any of the 4 or 4½ per cents at par for coin for many years to come. We believe there is no nation in the world which can sell 4½ per cent. bonds at par except England. French and German 5 per cents are hardly at par. The whole issue of 5 per cent. Government bonds when the syndicate take the $123,000,000 will be nearly $700,000,000 and, until these take a permanent value above par the opportunity of selling the lower rate of interest bonds will not present itself. It may be that Congress will have to authorize an increased issue of 5 per cent. bonds to meet the redemption of greenbacks."

In trade circles to-day the feeling of quietness is somewhat disturbed, but not animated by apprehensions of cold weather which will reduce the volume of water in the upper river interrupting the transportation of produce to this market, and the loading of vessels expected here for cargoes very soon. Prices for leading commodities are firm at our last figures, and in some minor articles of produce a slight advance is noted. Wheat and flour however, remain without change in the aspect of the market but few sellers being on the market so early in the week.

The Commercial Herald, San Francisco, Dec. 31st says: "Tonnage continues to be very plentiful, arrivals numerous mostly local laden or in ballast. Freights entirely nominal to the United Kingdom. Some owners continue to load vessels for ship's account in preference to taking charters at the rates offered say £3 15s to a direct port. There is at present a very large supply of disengaged tonnage in our harbor, in addition to the scores of ships having charters. The number of vessels on the U K berth is yet large and they are having usual dispatch. There is no scarcity of wheat in the State quite sufficient to load all now here and to arrive before harvest but the difficulty is for ship owners and exporters to agree upon terms that will admit of a free outward movement of our large stock of wheat and flour."

Miscellaneous.

Whilst a number of the vessels of the North Germans are in the market for sale and the builders on the Clyde begin to apprehend evil days the Delaware river iron shipbuilding and engine works have just concluded contracts for the construction of five new iron steamships. More and more clearly is it becoming apparent that American vessels can successfully compete with those of foreign construction on their individual merits irrespective of any other consideration.

The trade in whisky has not been affected by the hard times apparently. The production at Cincinnati for 1874 was [illegible],000 gallons ahead of 1873.

The aggregate value of petroleum exported during 1874 was $41,030,367 against $33,761,687 in 1872 and $36,4[illegible],482 the year before—making a total for three years of $110,146,536, all of which is so much gain to the general wealth of the country.

A late report of the business of the New York clearing house for the year ending September 30 shows an immense decrease in speculative business in that city as compared with former years the falling off this year as compared with last year, amounting to 40 per cent. So much the safer.

The marine tonnage of the several cities of the country is given by the reports just published at Washington, as follows:

New York	1,012,745	Baltimore	121,167
Philadelphia	303,642	Oswego	11[illegible],87[illegible]
Boston	274,941	Pittsburgh	103,63[illegible]
Bath	125,91[illegible]	Portland	104,632
San Francisco	124,065	Chicago	85,971
Buffalo	100,819	Waldoboro	100,613
St. Louis	121,636

The tonnage of the lakes is 738,838 and that of the Western rivers 573,464.

The total importations of dry goods at New York for the for the first eleven months of the year 1874 were about $9,000,000 below the figures of the corresponding period in 1873 and upwards of $[illegible],000,000 below the aggregate for the first eleven months of 1872. Good. There no more valid reason why we should not manufacture our own clothing than there is that we should not raise our own food supplies.

By the employment of steam on the New York canal grain was transported from Buffalo to tidewater at a cost of 4 mills per ton per mile against 1 cent per ton per mile by railroad. It is now predicted that the introduction of steam barges on the lakes will eventually reduce the rates for carrying wheat from Chicago to Buffalo to 1[illegible] cents, and that the tolls from Buffalo to New York will be again decreased to [illegible] cents by the employment of steam on the canal—making a total reduction per bushel of wheat of from 10 to 15 cents. If this is not cheap transportation it would be difficult to tell what is.

The Gorgones! were three celebrated sisters whose hairs were entwined with serpents. They had wings of gold, their heads were of brass, their bodies covered with scales, their teeth were as long as the tusks of a wild boar and they turned to stone all on whom they fixed their eyes. They are mythological creations—but in these days there may be seen some women who are regardless of their person and adornments—they allow the charms which nature accords to all their sex, their hair to become dishevelled, unhealthy and finally to drop out, when by the use of LYON'S KATHAIRON they could retain it in all its beauty and present to their lovers and husbands the witching grace of comeliness.

Ear Ache is unquestionably the King of the Forest where pains grow. It overtops tooth ache in its worst estate and its victims declare that it almost maddens them. Yet a few drops of the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT poured into the ear affords instant and what is far better permanent relief. This preparation has been sold for thirty years and wherever tried is regarded as a specific for all neuralgic pains. It may safely be used upon children of tender age. It is to be found in any drug store on this continent and abroad as well.

Our Climate has much to do with the complexion—our mode of living more. What multitudes of ladies resort to powders and adulterations which they rub upon their necks and faces like kalsominers putting on discolored walls, forgetful that water will remove the covering, and leave the skin unhealthy. A remedy is offered in HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM which for every many years has contributed to the beautification and health of the complexion and skin of American ladies.

The greater number of persons afflicted with dyspepsia are to be found among care worn special [illegible], stock brokers, merchants and ardent students, with those of sedentary habits who neglect to have opportunity to take sufficient exercise. The use of the world renowned PLANTATION BITTERS will supply the wear and tear of the system and render it healthy.

Colds and Coughs—sudden changes of climate are sources of Pulmonary and Bronchial affections. Take at once Brown's Bronchial Troches, let the Cold Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight.

Take AYER'S PILLS for all the purposes of a purgative for Constipation, Indigestion, Headache and Liver Complaint. By universal accord they are the best of all purgatives for family use.

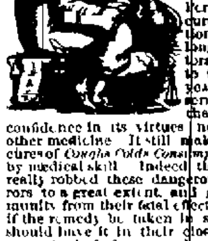
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.



The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words among not only one but many nations must have extraordinary virtues.—Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs Colds Consumption than can be made by medical skill. Indeed the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR

Advancing years sickness care disappointment and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy weak or sickly hair becomes glossy pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff heals all humors and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair the Vigor is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

[illegible] Meeting—The Situation [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Jan [illegible]—At a Cabinet [illegible] Louisiana affairs were d[illegible] not with a view to giving any [illegible] or instructions to United States [illegible] at New Orleans. The Ad[illegible] [illegible] that Gen Sheridan is in [illegible] to carry out the ideas of the [illegible] whatever parties [illegible] may [illegible] necessary to take in the affairs of Louisiana.

The Purport of Sheridan's Dispatch.

Sheridan's dispatch advising the arrest of White League leaders and their trial by military commission excites doubts of his prudence by thinking Republicans who understand the league not as [illegible]

Was [illegible] the Right Man?

NEW YORK, Jan 6.—The [illegible] that the Pre[illegible] for sending Sheridan into [illegible] district [illegible] the latter into [illegible] it should be [illegible] Kellogg [illegible] was selected because of his [illegible] Louisiana [illegible] their personal treatment of him during the war.

What a [illegible] Republican [illegible] Says.

William Walter [illegible] a Republican [illegible] the Congressional committee in New Orleans [illegible] the Conservatives, illegal [illegible] the organization [illegible] was not effected in accordance with the [illegible] statute of 1872, which provides [illegible] old House shall preside at the [illegible] made by the Secretary of State from returns of the [illegible] returning board [illegible] [illegible] all would submit [illegible] members of both [illegible] the whole [illegible] he thinks the evidence before [illegible] shows that no white man in the State [illegible] Kellogg government, unless it be office holders [illegible] their relations. Many white Republicans remained away from the polls at the last election or [illegible] Conservative ticket.

There has been Little Int[illegible]

As much on one side as the other. [illegible] has exploded the mystery of the White League by showing that it is neither a [illegible] political order. It is not a State organization [illegible] comprises 2,800 persons in New Orleans. Its constitution resolutions and deliberations are public. They have had no meeting from which reporters [illegible] the public press have been excluded. Its officers [illegible] all men of character and property. [illegible] they do not act as a superior police in the interests [illegible] law and order. The outbreak on the 14th of [illegible] looked only to the [illegible] of its arms.

What the Chicago Tribune Says.

CHICAGO Jan 6.—A Tribune's New Orleans special [illegible] the manner of the organization by the anti-Kellogg Legislature was clearly unjustifiable, but [illegible] subsequent organization of the Kellogg Legislature was just as clearly illegal. Fifty four members were present—the number necessary to constitute a quorum of the House—after the anti Kellogg party proceeded to organize, the old clerk holding over [illegible] called a roll for a second time and only [illegible] [illegible] Knowing that [illegible] were necessary how[illegible] and fifty four members answered to their names [illegible] there is a quorum present and the election of Speaker will be proceeded with or words to that effect. A speaker was accordingly elected and to conceal the fact that there was not a quorum present the vote was by acclamation. The calling of the roll would have developed the truth which [illegible] would have nullified the proceedings. They (the Kellogg men) now claim that the first roll call [illegible] which over 100 members responded was the roll [illegible] was interrupted by an [illegible] and that the proceedings were interrupted by a revolutionary attempt of the anti-Kelloggites to obtain the upper hand. When this revolutionary attempt was suppressed the House proceeded to business the minutes showing that many more than the requisite number were present. The result is that the United States troops are sustaining a usurping and illegal legislature.
